THE BRANDT SCHOOL

The Willy Brandt School of Public Policy at the University of Erfurt is one of Germany's leading policy schools.

- We train future leaders in government, civil society, and private enterprise in addressing the complex public policy challenges of our time.
- We are home to cutting-edge research on key areas in sustainable development, that is climate change, inequality, digitalization, violent conflict, and health.
- We generate impact by feeding results back to politics and society in general to inform evidence-based policy making.

The Brandt School is uniquely located in Thuringia's capital Erfurt, in the very center of the unified Germany, carrying deep historical significance from the Reformation to the Thirty Years' War, from Weimar to the Wall, with close infrastructural and intellectual ties to other important centers such as Berlin, Frankfurt, Prague, Brussels or Paris to name but a few.

THE MASTER OF PUBLIC POLICY

The Brandt School's Master of Public Policy (MPP) is a two-year practice-oriented, international, and interdisciplinary degree program. It is designed for young professionals who wish to pursue a career in public service, including government agencies, international organizations, and the non-profit sector.

Drawing from political science, economics, sociology, public administration and law, the MPP curriculum equips professional policy analysts and future decision makers with the knowledge and practical skills they will need to advance the public interest and make sound evidence-based policy decisions.

Throughout the coursework, research, and field experience, students develop a deep understanding of the policy process and the involved institutions and actors.

PROGRAM STRUCTURE

MPP candidates study two years full-time, earning a total of 120 credit points (ECTS). The first three semesters are dedicated to course work and the practical modules. During the fourth term, students write their thesis.

All students take eight core modules:

Core Modules

- Introduction to Public Policy
- Economic Policy Analysis
- Comparative and International Public Policy
- Public Administration and Finance
- Management and Leadership
- Ethics in the Public Sector
- Quantitative Methods
- Advanced Methods

Through the school's interdisciplinary approach, we learn a lot from different fields and get the knowledge we need to solve the problems of tomorrow in an entrepreneurial way.

Tassilo Scalera,
MPP alumnus from Germany

In addition, students may choose two out of four specializations:

Specialization Modules

- Non-Profit Management and Social Entrepreneurship
- International and Global Public Policy
- Development and Socio-Economic Policies
- Conflict Studies and Management

Practical Training Modules

Bridging the gap to the policy world is an important part of our teaching philosophy. MPP students, therefore, work with external professional partners and solve real-world policy challenges as part of a policy internship and a project group.

“

I like the MPP program's practical approach. Through the mandatory internship and the project group, we get the opportunity to work with international organizations and other interesting employers. We get exposure to a very hands-on and experienced way of practicing the things that we are learning in the classroom.

Andrea Robles,
MPP-alumna from Mexico

PROJECT GROUPS

During their third semester, MPP students implement a capstone – the project group – under the supervision of an academic staff member. They work in teams to address a tangible public policy problem for an external ‘client’, thus creating impact already during their studies.

Past clients include development agencies such as the German Agency for International Cooperation (GIZ), climate consultancies such as adelphi, state agencies such as the Thuringian Agency for Digitalization, non- partisan and charitable organizations such as the Transparency International, international financial institutions such as the European Investment Bank, or philanthropies such as the Open Society Foundations.

Language Module

Students improve their language competencies within several language modules. They may choose from a wide variety of languages. Basic German is compulsory for all students without prior knowledge of the language.

ADDITIONAL OFFERS

- individual support regarding housing, visa, health insurance, etc.
- mentoring and counselling through faculty, staff, and senior students
- preventive health offers
- university sports courses
- various cultural offers
- application clinics as part of our career service
- ...and many more.

MAKE THE MOST OF IT

- Build your network during the program

Meet academics and practitioners through courses, guest talks and short trainings, and make friendships with fellow students from around the globe.

- Improve your soft skills

Benefit from expert trainings on topics such as leadership, diversity, and communication.

- Learn outside the classroom

Boost your digital literacy through our Digital Learning Lab, join excursions, and work with partners to learn through experience.

- Make an impact

Turn your project ideas into practice through our Social Impact Campus, publish your findings on our blog, or advance policy solutions through your project group work.

- Have a say

Join the Brandt School's student government or the university wide Student Council to represent your fellow students in relevant matters.

- See the world from another perspective

Change perspective through our context-sensitive curriculum, the interaction with your fellow international students, or a semester abroad.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

The program prepares students for careers in state-level and national governments, public administration, international organizations, civil society, think tanks, consultancies, and other private companies.

Mainly training policy analysts and future leaders, the MPP has also paved the way for many alumni to work as social entrepreneurs, diplomats, development experts, politicians, journalists, managers, and researchers.

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

- higher education entrance qualification (i.e., high school diploma)
- college or university degree (i.e., Bachelor, Master, Diploma, state exam, etc.) with a duration of at least six semesters, ideally in subjects from the social sciences, economics, or law
- professional work experience (minimum of one year)
- above-average grades or above-average professional performance
- strong analytical skills and pronounced interest in solving political problems
- excellent English language proficiency (TOEFL iBT: minimum 90 points, IELTS: minimum of 6.5 points in all disciplines, Cambridge CAE or CPE)

APPLICATION

We strongly recommend applying before our priority deadline, which ends on February 28th of each year. The MPP program officially begins each year on October 1st.

You can find all information on deadlines, required documents and enrollment on our website www.brandtschool.de/admission or reach out to our admissions team at admissions-mpp@uni-erfurt.de.

GLOBAL, DIVERSE AND INNOVATIVE

Since 2004 more than 950 students from all over the world have graduated with our MPP.

Our alumni come from more than 100 countries and students from 30–40 different countries regularly take up their studies in the current MPP classes. They not only learn from faculty and with each other, but also from each other and our faculty from them.

At the Brandt School, diversity is a fact – and to us, this is an invaluable asset. The diversity of the people at the school is reflected in various characteristics such as origin, age, professional, and academic background.

Where our Brandtians come from

With classmates coming from so many different countries, the Brandt School offers a truly international and diverse learning environment. I treasure every exchange with my fellows. It deepens my perspective and reminds me of my blind spots, making me a more understanding and humble person – a better world citizen.

Clara Tak Yan Law,
MPP-alumna from Hong Kong
