Information about the elective modules:

- With the application for admission to the summer semester, students use a form to select three modules each for the summer semester and winter semester
- Later entrants to the winter semester must first choose from the four modules previously already chosen and can participate in the election in the next summer semester.
- In addition, an optional module must be specified.
- From the requests of the applicants, those 4 modules are selected per study program which have received the most votes. These modules are then offered.
- Provided that requests and actual offerings match, students will be admitted to the program for the three modules they have selected.
- If a desired module is not offered, the selected optional module will be chosen without further consultation and admission will be granted accordingly.
- If two or more modules cannot be offered, a consultation meeting will take place to match student preferences with what is available.
- In addition to the four modules chosen per degree program, students may also participate in modules of another degree program, provided that according to the examination regulations this module is also open for the student's own degree program.
